The Tour Introduction

Ireland has seen many changes over the last few decades, driven by the success of the ‘Celtic Tiger’ economy, followed by a severe recession. Despite these changes, the country retains a deep wellspring of Celtic and prehistoric history, language and music. Tour Guide Cheryl Traffon has researched this prehistory for the Irish section of her book The Earth Goddess and discovered some beautiful and remote sites of the Goddess throughout the land. Joint Tour Guide Lana Jarvis also knows Ireland well, having played (and won!) with Celtic folk group Ragamuffin at the Pan-Celtic festival at Killarney. Together they will lead this pilgrimage tour from the east to the far west of Ireland, visiting ancient and sacred sites, and telling the stories of the Goddesses of Ireland.

There will be plenty of time to connect with the sites and the spirituality of the landscape, and there will also be opportunity to reach out to the Goddesses at the sites. Join us now for a magical mystical tour of the sacred island of Ireland.

Itinerary

The Tour will begin in Dublin on the east side of Ireland and go in an anti-clockwise direction towards the north, then over to the west coast, and finally back by the southerly route to Dublin. About 15 sites will be visited, including burial chambers, stone circles, holy hills, sacred wells, and Sheelana-gigs, all with Goddess associations and stories. Accommodation will be in well-appointed B & Bs, and meals (not included) taken in local pubs and restaurants.

Details of sites

We start the Tour at the Hill of Tara, Ireland's legendary sacred centre and the location of the Mead-Hall of Maeve, the Goddess/Queen of Connacht. From here we go to Newgrange, the most famous passage tomb overlooking the River Boyne, legendary home of the Goddess Boann.

We then travel further up the Boyne Valley to Loughcrew, a passage tomb with inscriptions on the Hill of the Cailleach, the ancient Hag Goddess of Ireland. From here we travel to Faughert, legendary birthplace of the Goddess/Saint Bridget and the site of her well, before turning south to Carrowmore with its wealth of megalithic dolmens aligned to the large Mound named after Maeve. Maeve is still with us as we pass through Rathcroghan, her legendary home, and on to two incredible Brideswells and shrines dedicated to Bridget, one at Roscommon and one at Liscannor.

Along the way, we visit a mermaid Sheela-na-Gig at Clonfert Abbey and a beautiful stone circle by a lake at Lough Gur that is overlooked by a holy hill where the Goddess Aine was celebrated up until recent times. Then we catch a glimpse of the magnificent Paps of Anu, named after the eponymous Goddess of all Ireland, before calling in to see St.Gobnait's Sheela-na-gig at Ballyourney. Then we head to the furthest west peninsula of Beara, named after the Cailleach Beahra, a rugged unspoilt area with many stone circles and a boulder stone said to represent the Cailleach Beahra herself.

Finally, we head back east, calling in at Kildare, the centre of Bridget worship in Ireland, and pay our respects to her at the Cathedral and at Tobhar Bride, a peaceful sanctuary just outside the town. Thus, spiritually refreshed by the Tour, we make our way back to Dublin and return home.
